This library was purchased from Andrea Reynolds, who was unable to take her library with her when she moved to another state. The library has now found a home at Poff Elementary School in Hampton Twp. The children in the Service Learning Club painted it the school colors and have it put up where children can use it anytime! It was placed at this school because a child in the club said "I like to read when I swing" so it is near their playground.

Our Little Free Library was built in celebration of my Mother, Mildred Goldman, who was an avid reader. We know that she would have loved the idea of people in the neighborhood coming to the Little Free Library and sharing with each other. We are also going to have seed packets available. We are thrilled to be part of this wonderful organization.

Lat: 40.6576672
Long: -80.1145884

Katie Dopirak was a celebrated author of children's books, teacher, mom and overall ray of sunshine. She left this world too soon and with much more to accomplish. The Little Free Library at Knob Hill Park helps to continue her mission and commitment to creating sincere connections with children through the power of books.

Charter #4599

Little Free Library

Lat: 40.6432685Long: -80.0460919

The library was based off of a log cabin which I find very different. The books inside are also very different in their own way. There is a large range from children's books to cook books for adults and everything in between! The Little Free Library really brought the neighborhood together. Families have made it a daily activity to walk down to the library to trade books every day. It's a really great way to encourage reading for people of all ages!

Lat: 40.6141197Long: -80.0737693

Reading has always been a great inspiration since I was a child. I put 3 favorite quotes on the library from 3 different ages of my life. I deliberately bought the unassembled library from a couple in Wisconsin because that's where I grew up. After traveling for over 20 years in the military, it's nice to always have a piece of Wisconsin with me wherever I go.

Our library was built in 2017 in Kansas to share our love of reading with our community. The library moved with us to PA to continue sharing our love of reading with others. It was made with love and it withstood many months of Kanas winds. It received an update on PA and is now a brick red color. We hope this library will continue to bless others as much as it has been a blessing to us.

I can't remember when I first read about the Little Free Library, but as a school librarian with lots of books accumulated at home with more to come, I was definitely interested in having one. And it helps to have a handy, dandy husband who likes to make things out of materials lying around. Once the seed was planted in my head, the handy, dandy husband took it upon himself to secretly make me a Little Free Library and give it to me for a 2014 Christmas present. And the rest is history!

It took a team to make this dream possible. It started as an idea to help ease the mental stress of parents/grandparents during COVID and give children books to read which are "FUN"denmental. I threw my son an 8th grade party, it was lots of FUN! I realized other children are not as fortunate. Parents are stuck home in an already stressful environment. I just wanted to bring smiles to kids faces by donating toys, ethnic and cultural books.

This is the first in my neighborhood. But from the response I think there will be more. The library had been open only 3 days when I saw 3 books that had been left that I thought I'd enjoy....when I went back later they were gone! Proves to me that it's being used. Many kinds of books...mysteries, cook books, children's books, gardening books, novels, classics have been left. Every one has been respectful.

Welcome to Little Free Library @ Kerr. The building of this library and the cozy bench have been built and donated by Ethan Wyman as his Eagle Scout project for Troop #173. Ethan, a Kerr Elementary and Fox Chapel Graduate, chose this project as a way to give back to his school district and found it to be a perfect way to add to the newly built school. Books are appropriate for grades K-5.

Yough Trail Little Free Library

Lat: 40.3154535Long: -79.7936123

This Little Library is located on the Allegheny Passage along the Youghiogheny River. Many local neighbors walk on the trail and sadly, we don't have a local library. I had been looking for a master gardener project and the idea of a Little Free Library was perfect for combining gardening with reading. We share seeds, plants, stories and books. (Plus doggie treats.) It's a great way to build community.

This Little Free Library was made possible through the kindness of Kathleen M. O'Leary, a lifelong advocate of education and literacy. "Aunt Kay's" generosity allowed the Baldwin-Whitehall Educational Foundation to sponsor the library and furnish it with books from her personal collection. The library is a perfect tribute to her love of books and we sincerely appreciate her support.

The library steward, Katie Coban is a wonderful woman who has a vision for her community that begins at her job working with the community's children in schools and serving on the town council. With summer comes free time, and she understands the importance of encouraging children of all ages to continue to grow in their literacy skills. Together, with the help of Heather Husband, a graduate student and reading enthusiast, she is making an impact.

When my son (now in 6th grade) was in kindergarten or first grade, I volunteered to sort books at a book drive his school was having. In talking to another volunteer about my passion for reading, I learned about the Little Free Library. I immediately thought, "I'd love to have one someday". Someday is here!!!

Our library was inspired by the many we walked by while living in our beautiful WILLOW GLEN community in Northern California. Now, we're back in our hometown Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania and we wanted to inspire our MOUNT LEBANON community and the adorning mural represents our children & their interests. This library had books filled by neighbors the very first day and has enriched our community ever since, both adults & children!
