All of my life I have been giving back to my community. From the time I was 8 I dedicated my life to serving others for the good of God. I would volunteer my hours and days to help those in need. I live in an area where beyond school there is no learning. There are kids who are 12 years old who don't know how to read and write, and then I heard about Little Free Library from a dear friend Pat Bayne. It was a calling from God if you ask me. Such a great way to inspire the inopportuned to succeed.

Having a talented woodworker for a brother, Dom, who makes bird and butterfly houses for me regularly; a long-desired Little Free Library was made as a surprise gift! It has hinged front doors, each with a window, and a shingle-shaked roof. It's painted with trees and has a blue sky with white clouds. About two dozen books fit in this neighborhood library that is sturdily staked at the end of the driveway.

We always enjoy visiting Little Free Libraries and decided to create one to bring that same joy to our community. Our kids are really into LEGOs and so we added a LEGO brick library in the top of our library. Folks around here love hiding the painted rocks for others to find and post on FB, and we are hoping that the Little Free Library idea takes off as well.

The little Free Library is a tribute to Dr. Leonard, a retired faculty member of the Saint Vincent Education department. He, himself, was an outstanding educator and leader with the personal belief that everyone can succeed. The outreach he provided for us will now be provided to others through the little library, also a one-room school replica. Dr. Leonard is a partner that we so admire and will always remain a part of the Saint Vincent Education program and team.

I've always admired the concept of the Little Free Library and asked my husband to buy me the Cozy Cottage for my birthday. We just stained, finished, and installed it (with hopes of adding some art work at a later date) and enjoyed watching the children in the neighborhood discovering it. I think the Little Free Library helps build community at a time when people are working hard and often don't get to know their neighbors. I'm looking forward to be a steward.
